Hi George,

Ref. Proposed Public Spaces Protection Order

Absolutely. You have my vote. Certain operator activities that have been experienced need managing. I guess behaviour that is exceptional eg. in the event of a public activity such as an event you & NDDC just simply need to be consulted for your approval?

Good Morning George

I would wholeheartedly support this on a permanent basis.

It appeared however, that certain operators ignored the order last year and continued to tout along the quay on many of the occasions when I visited the harbour.

On speaking to other operators who respected the order, it's clear that not everyone was abiding by it.

I'm not sure what, if any action was taken, but it does need to be properly enforced otherwise it's a bit pointless.

Hope that's useful

Many thanks

Hi George, great news that the council wish to continue with this, I think it has been a great asset through the summer, regards [REDACTED]

The proposed Public Spaces Protection Order will restrict the soliciting of services at Ilfracombe Harbour by word of mouth, handing out leaflets or other means, unless under the express terms of a licence or the written permission of the Harbour Master. Do you agree with the proposed Order?

Yes

No

If Yes, please tell us why you think an order is necessary or would be of benefit.

If No, please tell us why you think we should not introduce a three year Public Spaces Protection Order.

By restricting the handing out of leaflets etc to bona fide licensed operators it may reduce the amount of leaflets handed out which frequently are just a nuisance to tourists and eventually just become more litter.

By only allowing the sale of services by registered sellers it will safeguard the general public from illicit peddlers. Additionally, if there are a number of people trying to tout for business it could lead to disorder between the sellers if not regulated in some way.

There is enough publicity all over town about these trips Everyone who comes to Ilfracombe visits the harbour so can see the trips on offer .

By enforcing it only Bona Fide licenced traders would be allowed to promote their businesses and it would potentially restrict the number of people handing out leaflets which frequently just become litter.

To avoid touting for trade becoming intrusive for both tourists and residents in the summer months. However, I don't see why all of the pleasure boat operators should not be able to gain permission from the harbour master to advertise their trips, so long as it is in a limited area - it's really important for them to be able to capitalise on the numbers of people in the area during this short period of time. I don't think people should be advertising/handing out leaflets etc along the quay where it is disruptive in an area which can already be quite chaotic due to traffic.

I agree there should be a standardisation but there needs to be clear guidance on cost and keeping to a minimum if competition is excluded.

People on holiday don't want to be pressured to take trips,there is plenty of advertising to allow people to choose.

Local traders need to be able to attract potential custom to ensure the survival and viability of the harbour

There is too much control at a central level in this country and it has not been in the peoples best interest. Let encourage enterprise and spontinately .often people only decide to have an excursion as a result of a leaflet or talking to someone on the harbour. I would also like to say we need more public loos in the town, we have lost 5 different areas where loos used to be charge 20p and have somewhere for people to go.
